The Economica Bookshop in Havana allegedly assumed the functions of the Editorial Paginas owned by the Partido Socialista Popular (PSP - Cuban Communist Party) which was closed by the Cuban government in March 1948. This bookstore, which is located in the same building on Calle O'Reilly as that formerly occupied by the Editorial Paginas, is owned by José González García and Alberto Sánchez Vellozo. Both of these men are members of the Casa de la Cultura, a Spanish Communist front organization, and belong to the Circulo Republicano Español, which has a strong Communist element.
